the 1990s, the number of people who have been employed in the public sector has increased in most countries.

There are a number of reasons why the public sector has expanded. One reason is that the population has aged, and this has increased the demand for social security and health care. Another reason is that the economy has grown, and this has increased the demand for public services. A third reason is that the government has increased its spending on social services. This has been done in order to provide a higher standard of living for its citizens. The expansion of the public sector has also been driven by the need to provide a range of services that are not provided by the private sector. This includes education, health care, and social security. The public sector has also expanded in order to provide a range of services that are not provided by the private sector. Between 7:15 and 7:40, buses packed with students come to an abrupt halt after the bumpiest 15 minutes of the day. Students crowd bus aisles, hurrying down the steps toward lockers full of books and friends full of conversation.

At the same time, other students whip into the parking lot, screeching tires to avoid oncoming traffic. Playing chicken for parking places sometimes gets the winner a few steps closer to the front door. This scene often grasps the attention of students walking by the front windows. Packing the parking lot to form a geometric maze, students often stand by their cars, shouting and yelling at each other about not being able to get out . . .

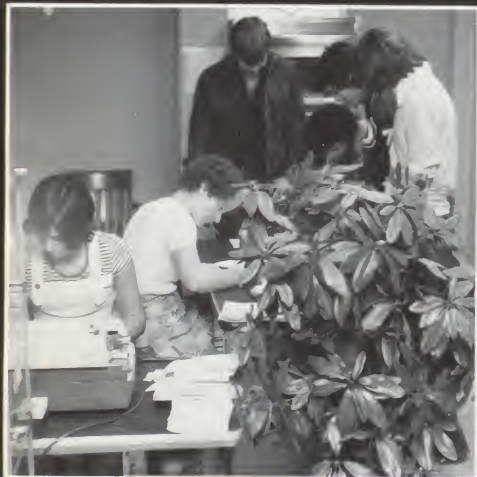

The slamming lockers and echoing footsteps of the early arrivers are soon replaced by the tremor of conversation, as masses of people crowd into the halls, cafeteria and jungle. Outside in the smoking area, students brave the weather for the last drag of a cigarette before the day begins.

The 7:40 bell sounds and the mass of humanity starts in motion toward first hour. Where hallways cross, students slow down to a push-and-shove situation, while trying to finish the last bit of conversation.

Mumbled answers to homework assignments and details of last nights' activities fill the classroom air until the 7:45 bell hushes the room with the beginning of class. A few late students come rushing in, banging into desks and chairs in an attempt to make it to their seats before attendance is taken

Late or early, each person is just one of 2,137 students sharing the school day. Many times his individuality is lost in the hustle and bustle surrounding him. But, each one has his own plans, tastes and desires. Each person takes different courses, participates in selected activities and lives his own school life. Each student shares both the good times and the bad with the friends of his choice. Although each one looks at life a little differently, most cheer at sports events, study for classes and anticipates any vacation. Together students compose the population of PHS and together worked to make the year 1976.

COURSES

New system in Geometry; sciences relate to society

Starting with new books, Mr. Elwood Mull, math department chairman, commented, "Overall, we're happy with them." Along with the new books, "We made a two track system in Geometry," said Mr. Mull. The upper level was heavy with proofs, or conclusions made by deductions. The lower level was not so rigorously proof oriented. Students were selected basically by grades, and the guidance department tried to make them aware of the difference between the two levels.

Although only one year of math is required to graduate, some students go further in their math studies. The number of persons who go on is generally the same through the years. Less than ten per cent of the students in their third year of math go on to the fourth and fifth years.

Even though there were many different science courses offered, "We generally tried to have some coordination between all science classes," stated Mr. Gene Hunsberger, science teacher. "I feel that all students should have an understanding of their society," said Mr. Jack Cantwell, science department head. He added that taking a science course would help one understand different areas of interest pertaining to any kind of science within his society. A new basic biology earth science course was scheduled to acquaint students with geology, astronomy, meteorology, and the environment, and how these sciences relate to human life.

Seniors Tim Boyden and Russ Tanner work together to solve a Calculus problem. Students put their math problems on the board daily so the class could ask questions if difficulties arose.

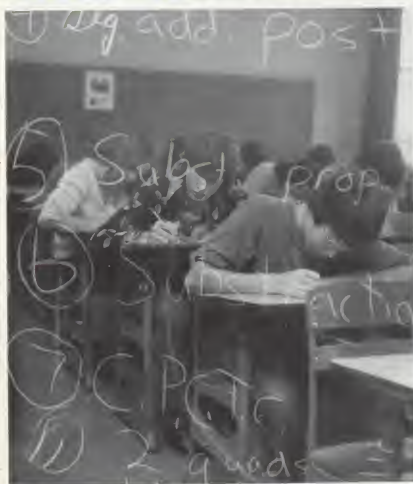

Michele Denfeld and Gayle Froman, srs., pour their partial thermo degradation of carbon dioxide formed saccharides with protein inclusions from a beaker. Students made this common peanut brittle as a lab project.

MATH: ROBERT KELLSTROM — General Math, Geometry, Math IV. ROBERT KERN — Algebra, Algebra II. ELWOOD MULL — Algebra II, Calculus. MERLE WHITEMAN — Geometry, Probability & Statistics, Trigonometry. ROBERT WILSON — General Math.

Testing to see if detergent has any properties of soap, sophomore Ed Duda uses his glass funnel to blow bubbles. Chemistry students made soap and compared characteristics of the soap to their own detergent.

This Geometry class finds that proofs can be very time consuming, especially during a test when time is limited. Geometry is one of the higher math courses offered to students.

SCIENCE: JACK CANTWELL — Electronics, Physics. MARVIN GUERNSEY — Chemistry, Chemistry II. GENE HUNSBERGER — Physical Science. HENRY LOOFT — Biology, General Science. EDWIN WEINS — Biology II, General Science, Driving.

A compass is used to help Steve Lovren, soph., figure out his math problems. This item is not an unusual implement to find in many Geometry classes, where circles are involved.

Putting Calculus problems on the board enables seniors Joe Carr and Judi Casale to understand them in depth. Students in Calculus class graduate with a major in math, by progressing this far.

Health & Safety helps one see workings of inner self

By taking Health & Safety, "a student will be conscious of himself," stated Mr. Arol Amling, Health & Safety teacher. This course was useful to students in many ways. Mental health was one of the many important areas studied, along with first aid and the different systems of the body.

Thirty required hours of driver education book work took students on to simulation and to actual road work. Six hours of road work, including simulation, was required for permits. Four hours of simulation equalled one hour of road work for the permits.

Driver ed cars were provided by Grieger Motors, Valparaiso, and Len Pollack, Gary. These dealers owned the cars but, through the Chicago Motor Club, driver education used the cars and paid only for the gas and maintenance of the vehicles.

Leadership was the main idea stressed in Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps (JROTC) classes. "I think it's a program that's good for any high school student," said Gunnery Sgt. James Feeney. From a student's point of view, "It is the only course that offers so much," commented Staff Sgt. Julie Karanovich, soph. JROTC offered many extra-curricular activities such as drill and rifle meets with 20 to 30 other high schools and colleges in northern Indiana. Members also participated in the Heart Fund and the Lions Club candy sale.

DRIVER'S EDUCATION, HEALTH & SAFETY, and JROTC: AROL AMLING — Health & Safety. LARRY CASBON — Driver's Education. SGT. JAMES FEENEY — JROTC I, II, III, IV. JERRY KAISER — Health & Safety, Athletic Director. LESTER KLEIN — Driver's Education. MAJ. MALCOLM STEWART — JROTC I, II, III, IV.

As part of driver education program, students spend approximately six hours in simulation. This part of the course acquaints students with proper driving habits through the use of films.

Irma DeLeon, soph., points to the renal vein as part of an oral quiz in Health & Safety. The renal vein carries blood from the kidney through the inferior vena cava to the heart.

Adjusting the sideview mirror, Mr. Lester Klein, driver education teacher, prepares to go driving with Ted Woodland and Marcia Saklaczynski, Jr. Students were scheduled to drive six hours on the road.

Sophomores Julie Bush and Ellen Bridges show the trophy the girls' JROTC drill team received for taking third place in a drill competition. The girls took part in out-of-school activities just like the boys did.

Mr. Arol Amling, Health & Safety teacher, uses the skeleton to explain to his class parts of the human body. The skeleton, small replicas of organs and charts are used in Health & Safety to acquaint students with the body.

Mr. Dennis Teige, representative of Northern Indiana Regional Addiction Association, explains many ways to save a life. He uses "Annie" as his victim in his presentation.

ENGLISH TEACHERS: JOHN ALEXANDER — English 10. MARY ELLA BARBER — English 11, Phase Electives. CAROLYN DOANE — English 10, News Bureau. MARY DOLD — English 10. NANCY HABENICHT — English 11, Latin I, II, III. JAMES KILLION — English 11. GERRI KOTYUK — English 10. English 11. KATHY KOTYUK — English 11. JULIA KOVALOW — Phase Electives. BARBARA MASON — English 10, Special Reading. WARREN MUNRO — Phase Electives. ARLENE NEILL — English 10. SHERRY OHLFEST — English 11. JOHN WILLIAMS — English 10.

Teachers plan new PHS; writing unit tried

Making plans for the new high school, translating Macbeth into modern English, and experimenting with new composition curriculum were just a few of the many projects in which members of the English department participated.

With the opening of the new PHS set for September, 1979, English teachers were busy planning the way they would like their rooms to look. Some of the things that the teachers would like are windows which can be opened, raised floor areas for oral work, and the capability of blocking out all lights for showing films or for use of an overhead.

Macbeth, a tragic play written by Shakespeare, troubled many juniors as they could not understand it at first. "The original looks of disgust on the majority of their faces when told they would be studying Macbeth have changed to looks of interest and at times, even approval," said Mr. Joe Stevens, student teacher for Mrs. Sherry Ohlfest, English teacher. He felt they enjoyed it more than they would admit and someday they would be glad they had become acquainted with Shakespeare and Macbeth.

"We were introduced to a new curriculum study which the state was considering to adopt," commented Mrs. Mary Dold, English department head. This study, known as the Individualized Language Arts program, would enable students to work in pairs, and integrate grammar and reading into writing. "The purpose of it is to improve the student's writing," stated Mrs. Dold. Teachers were asked to try various lessons in class and see how the new writing program would work out.

Senior Billy Reed relaxes at the end of the hour in his Newspaper course by reading the comics. Students in this phase elective read the newspaper daily and discussed such things as how the paper affects readers' lives.

Mrs. Mary Dold's English class takes notes for future reference as she explains a writing assignment. At various times, students were allowed to use their notes on tests.

Students get a chance to choose speech areas

Seniors Sandy Ruppert and Randy Shirey, and junior Rick Spicer cut out and discuss their stories. News Bureau staffers did approximately two news stories a week for area newspapers and one area radio station.

Wade Sievers, soph., practices cropping a picture for a publication. Beginning Journalism students learned to proportion pictures by masking off undesired areas and using a mathematical formula.

DRAMA, JOURNALISM AND SPEECH: BILL BODNAR — Acting, Drama, Speech. EVELYN ENNSMANN — Practical Speech, English 10. DEBRA HEITMANN — Beginning Journalism, Legend, Pow Wow, English 10. JERRY HUNDT — Practical Speech, Phase Electives. DOROTHY KURTZ — Practical Speech, English 10. BARBARA LOWERY — Advanced Speech, College Prep Speech.

A new semester speech program to be offered in 1976-77 was instituted by Mrs. Barbara Lowery, speech teacher. The program consists of a nine week public speaking course and another nine weeks' speech course of the student's choice. Some of the courses students had to choose from were Debate, Mass Media, and Introduction to Dramatics.

Instead of taking the traditional trip to visit the Gary Post-Tribune, beginning journalism students went to the Museum of Science and Industry for a unit on public relations. Students were required to keep a log of what they saw and then wrote articles putting themselves into various situations to promote the good image of the museum.

Acting classes placed a heavier emphasis on seminar discussion and on method acting. A major part of seminar discussion was devoted to a study on emotionalism to help the students understand why people react to certain situations the way they do. Trying to instill an appreciation of the arts in students was the main objective of Drama class.

Impromptu talks are essential to every speech student because they teach one how to speak without preparation. Senior Casey Donley gives an impromptu speech on his family.

Joyce Beier, Jr., offers a rebuttal to an editorial on shark attacks given by Jennifer Ferguson, jr. Mrs. Lowery's speech classes presented a news broadcast as one of their semester projects.

Pantomiming the proper way to drink from a glass is sophomore Kevin Ferguson. Acting classes also dealt in dialogues, soliloquys and improvisations while drama classes dealt in stagecraft.

Media Center unveils material at open house

Faculty members and students were able to view new media center materials at an open house designed especially for this purpose. New materials included books in such areas as language arts, psychology, science and social studies. A small opaque projector, a 35mm camera and a sync tape recorder were added to the audio visual department.

For the first time in many years, the media center did not house study halls all day long. The only study hall in the media center was fifth hour, with the rest in the cafeteria, lecture room and D-9.

"I am in the business of repairing egos," stated Mr. Michael Livovich, prevocational education (PVE) coordinator. PVE courses enabled students who couldn't cope with the usual classroom situation to rebuild their confidence, so they could finish their education and plan for a future.

As well as gearing students for the outside, Work Orientation included experiences in working with others. PVE students opened Nature's Art, Incorporated, a corporation where each student had the opportunity to buy stock and receive dividends when the corporation dissolved. The money from the stocks paid for the necessary materials needed to run the corporation. For Christmas, Nature's Art, Inc. made decoupage logs with a variety of pictures on them, and sold them to the student body and public. The money received from this was used for the upkeep of the corporation.

Junior Georgia Ramey aids librarians by checking passes. Library aides were also required to shelve books, check out books and work in the reference room.

Assisting in the everyday tasks of a general secretary, Theresa Thomaso, jr., stamps educational material for use in media centers. Through Work Orientation, students learned the skills necessary for future careers.

Michelle Riggins, soph., finds it helpful to use the card catalog when locating a book. The card catalog is a multi-purpose one with listings under author, title and subject.

Concentrating deeply, Mary Roop, jr., attempts to do a math assignment. Occupational Math is just one of the courses PVE students are required to take.

PREVOCATIONAL EDUCATION: MICHAEL LIVOVICH — Consumer Education, Developmental Psychology, Special Mini Courses, U.S. History, Work Orientation. GAIL MAHNS — General Science, Health & Safety, Occupational English, Occupational Math.

Senior Carol Warren works on her practice set in Office Practicum as a part of a five-part rotation. This class trained students to work in an office by giving them work on various business machines.

Barb Younkes, sr., pauses momentarily to read the instructions pertaining to her assignment in Computer Education. Besides doing class work, students used the computers to solve other assignments such as math homework.

BUSINESS: GERALD BURR — Computer Education, Data Processing. DONNA CUMMINS — Accounting, Personal Typing, Typing. MAE DOLEZAL — shorthand. JAMES HILL — Business Math, Typing. MARYANN LIVOVICH — Business Math, Office Practicum, Typing. JILL MILTEER — General Business, Personal Typing, Typing. MARY JANE MRAK — Accounting, Accounting II, College Prep Typing, Personal Typing. TERRY MURPHY — Typing, Sales, Driving. DEAN SHATZ — Business Law, Distributive Education, Related Distributive Education. RAYMOND SIFRIG — Typing II. SHELLY RUCKMANN — Typing, Typing II, Office Practicum.

Teachers look forward to new school facilities

"We are really looking forward to the opening of the new school," exclaimed Mrs. Mae Dolezal, business department chairman. "We have so many plans for the business department, it's really exciting," she continued.

Mrs. Mary Jane Mrak, business teacher, stated that they are hoping to have an "Intensive Office Lab" consisting of a big room with each student having his own secretary's desk, complete with telephone, files, etc. The students will perform tasks a secretary does every day on the job.

While thinking about the new high school, the business teachers also had to deal with the present program. Shorthand, accounting, office practicum and typing were some of the many business courses offered, with a new course of record keeping, planned for next year.

Mrs. Dolezal commented that after a year of shorthand and typing, a student should have the minimal skills needed to go directly into a secretarial job.

A new business class offered was Computer Education, which exposed students to computers and how they work. "The students had to take an aptitude test to see if they were qualified to enter this class," stated Mr. Robert Mullen, guidance counselor. Mr. Gerald Burr, Computer Education teacher, felt the course was definitely worth the money it cost and felt that the students learned much about computers and the value a computer has.

Feeding information to the computer, senior Dan Kennedy begins to work his problems. The Computer Education class was a new business course offered to seniors only.

Senior Shari Payne prepares to type information from a tape made by her business teacher. Students learned how to type according to the rate of speaking by using the dictaphone instead of having notes to follow.

Todd Radivan, soph., practices one of several points which are stressed in beginning typing, keeping his eyes on the book instead of looking at the keys on the typewriter.

With Craig Nelson, sr., as judge, Dave Coburn, soph., acting as balliff, swears in Doug Crandall, sr., in the mock trial. This trial was videotaped so those involved could see how they looked to their classmates.

Seniors Debbie Sobczak, Karen Kusmierz, Lisa Taylor and Vicki Winter test the validity of fresh orange juice. In previous years, breath mints, shampoos and even dog food have been tested in Economics.

Sophomores Ellen Kwains, Mike Belancin, and Rex Smith and senior Casey Donley develop a model city in the urbanization unit in World Geography. This project allowed students to replan cities of today.

SOCIAL STUDIES: DENNIS BOND — Government, Independent Study. RONALD BULS — U.S. History, Mini Course. JOHN DECOSTER — Psychology, Mini Course. JAMES DOUGLAS — U.S. History, World History Honors. CHRISTINE ELIBASICH — Economics, Sociology. MORRIS GOODNIGHT — U.S. History, Driving. RONALD HANCOCK — Cadet Teaching, Government, World Geography. NEIL LANE — Economics, World History, Mini Course. MICHAEL LEMOND — Economics, Government. BARBARA LOVERICH — Social Problems. ALFRED SMITH — U.S. History. MILLIE TAYLOR — Economics. HENRY WEGRZYN — Government, U.S. History.

Hypnotists probe the mind; students learn its capabilities

Students in Sociology and Social Problems classes experienced a mock trial, which exposed them to proper court procedures and showed them that "one must do a lot of research to come up with the truth," commented Ms. Christine Elibasich, Sociology teacher. The students volunteered for the various parts portrayed, and the jury was chosen from study hall. Ms. Elibasich and Mrs. Barbara Loverich, Social Problems teacher, felt the mock trial gave the students a better understanding of social problems.

While these students learned what courts are like, Psychology students were visited by hypnotist who showed them that "our mind" is capable of much more than we allow it to do," stated Mr. John DeCoster, Psychology teacher. He added that the students found that the power of suggestion can have a tremendous influence over the control of somebody else. Besides being hypnotized, Psychology students studied ESP and other mind-related phenomena, personalities and the various ways psychology has of measuring personality, and mental health.

Although Social Studies classes did not visit the Indiana State Prison in Michigan City, due to difficulties and security reasons at the prison, other classes went on field trips of a different nature. World History classes traveled to Bethlehem Steel, while Psychology classes went to Amish Acres and Economic students visited the Commodities Market in Valpo.

Kathy Weber, sr., reads the textbook for the six-week mini-course, "Perspectives on Death." Among others, speakers for this course were a coroner, rabbi, minister, priest and a funeral director.

For a mock trial performed by the Sociology and Social Problems classes, the jury consisted of students chosen from study hall. Those chosen were not enrolled in these classes and knew nothing of the trial until it began.

Authority in society is exemplified by seniors Judi Casale and Ken Gobin in the Crime and Delinquency mini-course. By trading coupons while holding hands, they try to get into different groups.

Mrs. Louise Blaney explains proper cooking procedures to John McKeighen and John Miller, seniors. Students in cooking classes followed a day-to-day schedule of cooking labs and classroom discussion.

Attempting to satisfy the students, the home economics faculty taught more than cooking and sewing.

Mrs. Martha Sommers' Marriage & Family classes experienced something that persons usually dream of for their future — marriage. They went through the process, in class, of getting "engaged" and "married." They faced some problems that occur in real life, such as sudden deaths in the family, financial troubles and children's behavior problems.

The "wedding" proceeded like a real one, except vows were not binding. This project was used to show students exactly what problems they may face later in life.

Since there has been a greater emphasis on the metric system, home ec students were exposed to it and compared it to the English system used now. The teachers felt that the more the students saw and used the metric system, the easier it would be for them to learn and accept it.

HOME ECONOMICS: LOUISE BLANEY — Foods, Housing Boys' Home Economics. VALERIE HARWOOD — Clothing, Consumer Education, Foods, Interpersonal Relationship. SHARON ROSE — Clothing, Foods. MARTHA SOMMERS — Child Development, Family Health, Marriage & Family.

Chris Mulligan, jr., paints on canvas as his art project. Students in paintings classes used oil, acrylic, or tempera paints, depending on what they were painting and what type of canvas they were working on.

Juniors Gladys Jentsen and Kathy Wilacky work together as Kathy finishes her ecology box. Students had to supply materials needed for their projects if the art department did not have it.

Art department acknowledges Bicentennial with banners

"It's really a contribution to all of the children of the Portage Township Schools and to America in its Bicentennial year," stated Mr. Joseph Koss, art teacher. Mr. Koss was referring to the Bicentennial banners which he and seven other art teachers, plus many students, composed. The banners had silk-screened on them the motto "Weaving the past into the future."

"I wanted at least one banner in each of the schools before the students returned from Christmas vacation," added Mr. Koss. A total of 26 banners were made, with one in the administration building and two or three in some schools.

The art classes were settled this year better than they have been in the past, and the art fees stayed $3 per semester. The students' fees paid for general supplies such as paints, papers, carving tools and crayons. Any special supplies needed for specific projects were supplied by the individual students. The art department taught objectives according to the basic guidelines set by the state, with activities students could apply in class.

Sophomore Cindy Quitasol uses a wooden carving knife to put a design on the pottery she made in Ceramics class. Students were allowed to make anything they wanted out of clay.

Kim Oldham, sr., uses a pottery wheel to form the shape of her pot. A student could form bowls, pots or vases by putting clay on the wheel, spinning it and using his hands to form the shape of the desired pottery.

Cathy Pollay and Cindy Staninger, jr.s., use an inkleloom to make a weaved string design. By weaving string around parts of the inkleloom, the student keeps the shape of the design in place until finished.

Parents sponsor uniforms; students try out in contests

Students involved in the music department paid for their own instruments, unless their instruments were part of percussion or string bass. Any student who played one of these instruments rented the ones owned by the high school music department for a fee of $10 a year. The uniforms students wore at games, parades and other performances were paid for by music sponsors and fund-raising drives.

The sponsors for the Portage schools were the parents of the students involved. These parents sponsored the sales of season tickets for football and basketball games, and ran the concession stand at home games. One of the fund raising drives the music students participated in was the selling of popcorn.

With approximately 500 students involved, the music department performed 12 times for the public. Two of the performances were contests, one for the orchestra and vocal sections, and one for the band section. "The majority of our students participated in these contests," stated Mr. Joseph Bondi, music teacher.

Diane Jolly, sr., awaits her cue to begin performing on the cello — the "tenor" voice of the orchestra. The cello is the third voice, preceded by the violin and the viola, and followed by the bass.

Playing the flute in band class, senior Marcia Black practices for an upcoming concert. Students practiced each day, under the direction of their teachers, as well as on their own time outside of class.

MUSIC: JOSEPH BONDI — Orchestra. ROGER LINDQUIST — Choir, Chorus
MARTIN SENSENBAUGH — Concert Band, Music Theory, Symphonic Band.

It's not unusual for the choir to practice daily to keep voices in shape for concerts. Juniors Linda Dye and Tammie Salmon participate with the rest of their class on drills to develop style.

Still unsure, senior Dave Whitworth checks to reassure himself that he is one of the Portage High School Choraliers. The 16 Choraliers were selected out of 50 students who tried out to represent Portage.

Mr. Jon Padfield, representative of the Princeton Industries Corporation, discusses the sales and distribution of popcorn. This was one of the money-making projects that involved the whole music program.

Actual working experience provided by school programs

Cadet teaching and Distributive Education (DE) gave students a chance to experience things that a teacher does each day, while others went to work during school hours through DE.

Cadet teachers were graded by a "combination of my grade the supervising teacher's grade," commented Mr. Ronald Hancock, cadet teaching adviser. Students were graded on such things as cooperation, discussion and papers that had to be written. Supervising teachers had to fill out a form about the student's work, which helped Mr. Hancock give the student a grade. "Out of 86 students that signed up for the DE program, 60 were accepted," said Mr. Dean Shatz, DE adviser. The state, which regulates the program, felt that if only 60 students participated, the program would be more effective than if there were more. Each student that signed up had to file an application with teacher references and previous employment. Students who were accepted had to be approved by Mr. John Hevel, Mr. Robert Smith and Mr. Maurice Tolbert.

Senior Linda Trocino rearranges shampoos in her spare time at work. Linda also stacked shelves and was a cashier as a part of her Distributive Education job at J-Mar Pharmacy.

Mixing learning and fun while playing Popcorn Math is one of the highlights that Kathy McCain, sr., uses as a cadet teacher. She helped in teaching a class of third graders at Central Elementary School.

Wrapping a piece of strawberry cream pie for a take-out order is senior Tammy Moore. Tammy participated in the Distributive Education program and worked at the Portage Bonanza.

Brenda Belk, sr., waits to help Lisa Hughes, a kindergartener at Central, while she matches patterns and colors with shapes of blocks. Brenda student taught during the second semester through the cadet teaching program.

Collecting carts from the parking lot was part of senior Greg Cuppy's job as a general stockboy. Among other things, Greg bagged merchandise and shelved various articles at the local A&P.

Senior Randy Rickman grades Biology papers for his supervisor teacher as a part of his Cadet Teaching assignment. Randy cadet taught at Grissom, and was one of ten who practiced open concept teaching.

Sophomore Ron Heater listens to a Spanish dialogue to improve his understanding of what he hears. German, Spanish and French students shared the language lab.

While teaching French, Mr. Dave Masty finds it helpful to use cartoon sketches and stories. These enabled students to recall dialogue they had learned previously.

Eating some German cookies at the cultural exchange, Juniors Scott Stevens and Jim Hale pause to take a minute to talk. The ethnic foods were provided by German, French and Spanish students.

Students vacation in France

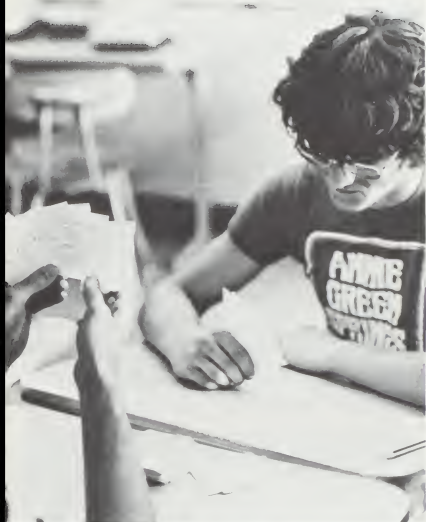

Thirty-five students journeyed to France for 12 days during spring vacation. Accompanied by Mrs. Sylvia Schenk, French teacher, and five other chaperones, the students toured the Loire River Valley, Normandy and Paris. In Paris the students visited Notre Dame, the Eiffel Tower and Versailles. "It was quite an educational experience," commented Mrs. Schenk.

Cooking a German meal, learning German folk dances, and making models of stores and selling German products gave first-year German students a sample of the country's culture. Second and third-year German students acted out skits and commercials.

the Roman Saturnalia, a festival for Saturn, the Roman harvest god. Also, senior Ted Choucalas taught all Latin classes a group of folk dances.

Pinatas were made as decorations for the cultural exchange by Spanish I students. Fourth-year Spanish students had a Mexican lunch at a restaurant and prepared their own Mexican meal. Donations were taken for the food used in the meal and then the students went to a Mexican store in Indiana Harbor and purchased the items. Performing doctor and patient skits, making Valentines, and trying a hand at marketing were some of the projects done by Mrs. Sandra Zeller's Spanish II classes.

Use of a German card game made up by Mrs. Evelyn Ennsmann enables Jim Dietz, Brian Eichorn and Mike Longfellow fresh., to strengthen vocabulary. Students tried for bonus points by matching German — English cards.

Ted Choucalas, sr., teaches Latin students a series of Greek folk dances that he learned from his grandmother and aunt. The folk dances are done at weddings and festivals.

Visiting the U.S. from Chile is senior Rosa Nettle. Rosa is living with the family of Dr. George McKay, asst. superintendent of secondary education, and will be staying until July.

Wearing his glasses, Steve Barncord, soph., sands his magazine rack for woods classes. Projects made in woods class were kept by the students, who put them to a variety of uses.

Before beginning to work, Jim Boyd, jr., figures out the measurement of the drill bit needed to the nearest inch. The drill is just one of the many pieces of equipment students use in shop classes.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS: ROBERT BROWN — Career Education, Industrial Co-op Training, Related Industrial Co-op Training. DAVID BRUZEK — Electricity, Woods. DENNIS CLETCHER — Vocational Building Trade. JAMES CRAIG — Machine Shop, Vocational Machines. PHILLIP DICKEY — Woods, Woods II. ROBERT GRAY — Electricity, Power Mechanics, Driving.

Girls' industrial classes feel facility shortage

On the suggestion of two seniors, vocational printing classes offered a new service to PHS seniors. The classes printed graduation announcements and sold them for a substantially lower cost than the standard announcements. Not many students took advantage of this offer. The reasonings behind their actions were a lack of knowledge of the service and the lack of a wide variety of patterns to choose from.

In a sense, vocational building classes also started a new program. Whereas, there used to be only one building and trades class, two were offered, one in the morning and a second in the afternoon. In previous years the classes built one house every two years, but now they will build a house a year.

Due to a lack of facilities, a few industrial arts courses were cancelled. These included Girls' Auto Mechanics and Girls' Auto Service. In addition, half of the students who signed up for Power Mechanics were also turned away.

Senior Gilbert Villarruel works with the drill press in his woods class, being very careful not to make a mistake. A mistake could mean having to start all over again.

This equipment rack holds most of the materials that are used in the woods classes. Saws, hammers, screwdrivers and wood planes are just a few of the many tools available to students.

Leadership students acquire fundamentals of teaching

Out of the 80 students who signed up for Leadership, 26 were picked for the class. The students were chosen from applications indicating their desire to go on in the physical education field.

Teaching elementary school physical education classes, Leadership students learned how to plan lessons and carry them out.

During second semester, the annual Leadership camp, the only one in the area, took place at Goodfellow Camp near Valparaiso. Two students were chosen by their classmates as camp director and assistant camp director. The remainder of the students were camp counselors. Activities and menus for the camp were planned by the class ahead of time.

As a replacement for Mr. Donald Van Deursen, Mr. Michael Niksic, recreation and boys' gymnastic teacher, was added to the PE department. Mr. Niksic commented that he tries to achieve team participation and cooperation between boys and girls in his Recreation classes.

Twirling streamers, sophomores Kathy Thews and Esther Clark try to keep in time with the music. Practicing various routines helps students develop better coordination and rhythm.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION: BERNITA ADKINS — Girls' Physical Education, Leadership, Recreation. THOMAS LEVANDOWSKI — Boys' Physical Education. DAVE MATTIX — Boys' Physical Education. MICHAEL NIKSIC — Boys' Gymnastics, Recreation, Health & Safety. BEVERLY REYNOLDS — Girls' Gymnastics, Girls' Physical Education. JUANITA VIERA — Girls' Physical Education, Recreation.

Shari Denfeld, jr., attempts to do a back hip circle on the uneven parallel bars in girls' Gymnastics class. Girls in Gymnastics also work on the balance beam, trampoline and floor exercise.

While playing volleyball in Recreation class, junior Paula Henderson sets the ball up for one of her teammates. Recreation is an elective co-ed PE class open to juniors and seniors.

Matt Tanner, soph., finds it hard to keep his partner Mark Devyak, soph., pinned. PE students found that strength and agility are two important qualities a wrestler must have to overcome his opponent.

Events

Drugs

"Drugs in Portage is not only a high school problem," stated Sgt. Ed Lloyd of the Portage Police Dept. (PPD).

In the spring of 1976 the PPD, with the help of neighboring police forces, arrested 40 persons on drug charges. Nineteen of these were juveniles and many of them had attended the high school. Some of the juveniles were arraigned to ault courts, while others were sent to boys schools.

"I have talked with students of other high schools who tell me about the drugs in their schools, and I have come to the conclusion that Portage High School is no worse than any other school in the county," stated Mr. Stanley Krysa, Porter County probation officer for the Portage area.

Although some students do use illicit drugs, a limited survey taken May 10th, showed that less than 50 per cent of the 105 students questioned had ever even tried illegal drugs. It also revealed that of those polled, 72 per cent had tried marijuana at least once but only 40 per cent regularly used the substance.

These results do not necessarily represent the average PHS student.

This bottle contains 500 different types of prescription drugs, which the Portage Police Department confiscated through numerous drug raids throughout the area.

Roach clips and water pipes, used to smoke marijuana, are some of the paraphernalia confiscated by the police. It is now illegal to have any of these items in one's possession.

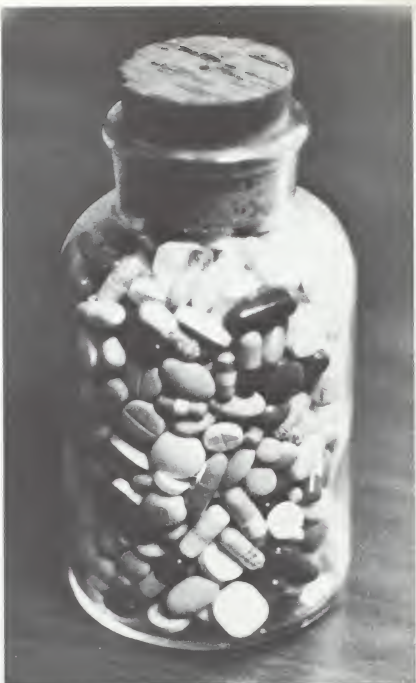

Alcohol

Use of alcoholic beverages, according to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, is a problem with teenagers. In an informal poll, 105 students were questioned and 90 per cent said they have tried an alcoholic beverage at one time or another, while 60 per cent continued to drink regularly. These percentages do not necessarily reflect the average, since the poll was limited.

Going to parties, heading to Michigan, and looking for deserted roads were a few of the ways students tried to find a way to drink. Although some were caught by police and parents, many continued to drink on weekends and after school.

"Drinking is an escape from boredom. I drink because I have nothing better to do and it's easy to get," stated one senior.

In Indiana the legal drinking age is 21, although some places do not ask for age identification. If students can not buy the beverages themselves, older friends and relatives sometimes supply minors with the alcoholic beverages.

Junior Bill Pfeffer reaches for a beer from the family's refrigerator. Some parents don't mind if their children drink as long as it is under their supervision.

Beer seems to be the favorite alcoholic beverage of those high school students who consume alcohol because it is inexpensive and easily accessible. Whiskey, gin and vodka were also drinks students were able to find for parties.

Mass media affect students' lives

In recent years the mass media of TV, radio and movies have been affecting the everyday lives of students.

The Academy Awards for 1976 for best picture and the other four major awards went to "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." In a limited survey taken of 405 students, those questioned also rated this movie as their number one choice.

Junior Mary Reigert commented, "I felt it was a good movie; there was a good balance of humor and seriousness. 'Cuckoo's Nest' caused me to really think about what I had seen."

This survey also revealed that students went to the movies an average of ten times during the school year. Pupils chose "Jaws" and "Dog Day Afternoon" as their second and third choices, respectively.

Over half the students polled felt that there were too many police-detective shows shown on television. Even though this was revealed, "Starsky and Hutch" was their second favorite weekly television series.

Many varied reasons were given, but one junior summed it up well by saying, "I don't think of 'Starsky and Hutch' as an average cop show. The actors are realistic and the pace of the show is fast moving."

"Welcome Back, Kotter," a series concerning a nonconformist teacher and his rebellious students, received top honors as the show most frequently watched by students.

"The jokes are really funny and I like the story it tells," stated Skip Dixon, sr.

Also in this survey students chose over 20 different radio stations as the favorite, with WDAI (94.7 FM) and WDFH (95.5 FM) as their first and second choices. They also revealed that listening to the radio was the area of mass communications that affected their lives most.

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" starring Jack Nicholson, featured the life of persons confined to a mental institution and all the crazy happenings and goings on that the public never sees.

The television set, often called the "boob tube," was watched an average of 15 hours a week by students who answered a limited survey. This result reflects only the opinion of 405 students polled.

The motion picture "Gable & Lombard" starred James Brolin and Jill Clayburg. Senior Judy Casale picked this as her favorite picture of the year, "because it's the one I remember best of all the shows I saw this year."

The wildest, wackiest love affair Hollywood ever knew.

Juniors Kim Mocco and Louise Schavey enjoy a break from school at McDonald's, during their lunch hour. Since the creation of open campus, all students have been allowed to leave the school grounds for lunch.

Spending a leisurely hour playing pool at the Rec Room is sophomore Dan Lukasik. The recently erected recreation center offers a place for students to spend their time playing a variety of games and machines.

Senior Vicki Calmes helps out at home by taking on the family shopping. Besides going to school half a day, Vicki also attended Don Roberts' Beauty School in Valparaiso, where she is studied to be a beautician.

Inflation cuts off student recreation after hours

Because of the rising cost of living due to inflation and the lack of recreational facilities in Portage for its youth, many PHS students are faced with little or nothing to do in their spare time. Because of the great expense of social activities, a weekly formal date has almost become a thing of the past for some students. For example, a ticket to a movie for one person costs approximately $3, not including the additional 50-60 cents for a cola and another 50 cents to $1.50 for popcorn, which comes out to about $9 per couple. Also, dining at a restaurant, which runs about $20 or more, has become so expensive that many students cannot afford it. Another popular activity, the prom, which when totaled costs a couple approximately $150, is also way out of many students' budget ranges.

Some students have decided that getting a job may be the answer to their financial problems.

Local merchants such as fast food chains, grocery stores and drug stores, have provided parttime and after school jobs for students looking for this type of outlet for their energies.

Volunteer work helping out a nearby hospital, teaching swimming to handicapped children, or doing nightly work for a counseling service — has added special meaning to the lives of some students.

Another pastime of many students on the weekends was the many concerts presented in different auditoriums in Chicago, where students could see many well-known rock groups perform live. The Eagles, America, Bachman and Turner Overdrive, Queen, and Bob Dylan were just some of the groups that performed during the year. Although these concerts seemed expensive, the average ticket running somewhere between $3 and $10, most students felt that it was a worthwhile expense.

Some students, wishing to seek their own kind of thrills, made frequent trips to Michigan where the drinking age is 18. Yet other students headed toward the Illinois border. And still other students spent long hours just "cruisin' "

PHS sports fans cheer on their team at a football game. Many students found that this was a good way to spend an inexpensive Friday evening. Portage ended its football season with a 5-5 record.

Bailly Homestead reopened by park in August

By now everyone knows the meaning of the Bicentennial. Some have even renamed it the "buy-sellennial," because of the commercialization effect.

Since the first day of the New Year, television viewers have been subjected to commercials celebrating the Bicentennial. Included were the nightly Bicentennial Minutes on CBS television, which gave the history on events that occurred two hundred years ago to the date.

Many of the students had strong feelings towards the bicentennial. One junior voiced, "I'm glad we have celebrated the Bicentennial year, but I think everybody is overdoing it."

"The Bicentennial is a rip-off. So many companies are making money off of such items as paper plates. Manufacturers are using it as a means to sell their product," stated Vicki Newcomb, senior. "It's nice that they want to make people realize how much we have changed in the past 200 years, but it is getting rather monotonous," she added.

Portage Township Schools sponsored an all-school "Bicentennial Spring Sing" April in the Grissom gymnasium. March 24 was the presentation of "200 Years of Dance," sponsored by the physical education teachers of the elementary, middle and high schools.

Other things such as Bailly Homestead and Chellberg Farm, located in Chesterton, reflect the spirit of the Bicentennial.

Joseph Bailly was the first white settler among hundreds of Indians in Northwest Indiana. Chellberg became owner of a portion of the Bailly property after Bailly's death in 1863.

Indiana Dunes Park Service is now renovating Bailly Homestead, which will be open to the public in August.

Mr. Joseph Koss, art instructor, embarks on an idea to celebrate the Bicentennial. With the help of others, he silk screened the banners which are displayed throughout the school system.

This year's license plates showed a colorful array of red, white and blue and an unfamiliar sight of a minuteman. Each state put forth its best effort in designing the plates in celebration of the Bicentennial.

The Portage branch of the License Bureau issues another Bicentennial license plate to a Portage citizen. The special license plates appeared on all vehicles in the state.

Carpenters are trying their best to restore the home of Joseph Bailly. The house enlarged when it was used as a restaurant and is now being restored to the way it originally looked.

This two-story brick house dates back to the 1880's after Bailly's death. It was added on when Bailly's granddaughter owned the house, but was moved to its present location around 1904.

Sauk Trail was one of the things, including the Little Calumet River, that kept Joseph Bailly in business. Bailly did most of his trading with the Indians who traveled up and down the trail.

Paul Chaja, junior, poses with the bicentennial project that he designed and built himself as a project in Mr. Koss' class. Many other projects done by the class can be seen in display cases throughout the school.

Although some people believed that the national bird should not be the bald eagle Mercedes Garcia, senior, believed it was. In her project she pictured an outstanding eagle with stars and stripes surrounding.

Trimming junior Rick Spicer's fake mustache is Mr. William Bodnar, director. Makeup is very important because it helps the actors to fit their parts. Rick played Sheriff Will Masters in "Bus Stop."

Cherie, played by Karen Dye, sr., protests against going to the ranch of Bo, played by junior Bob Collins. However, Cherie later marries Bo and goes to his ranch. "Bus Stop" was presented Nov. 14 and 15.

Barb Boznak, soph., sings and plays the guitar solo she wrote herself. Barb's was one of 18 skits presented at the variety show, "Kaleidoscope of Talent." There were two other guitar skits, a solo and a duet.

'Bus Stop,' 'Kaleidoscope of Talent' presented

Two of the drama department's productions were the fall play, "Bus Stop," and the winter variety show, "Kaleidoscope of Talent."

Both were at Grissom Middle School. "Bus Stop" was presented Nov. 14 and 15, while "Kaleidoscope of Talent" was performed Feb. 27 and 28. "Bus Stop," by William Inge, was set in a small town in Kansas where a bus was stranded by a snow storm.

Instead of a three-act production, "Kaleidoscope" hosted 18 variety skits.

For example, Roseann Caccese, soph., accompanied her singing dog at the piano.

Seniors Karen Dye, Mary Kimbrough, Beth Roach and Pam Weaver formed a barbershop quartet. Also, Phil Clough and Terry Bailey, jr., performed the comedy routine, "Who's on First," originated by Laurel and Hardy.

Mr. William Bodnar directed both productions, with Betsy Hanley, jr., as student director and choreographer for the variety show. Mary Kimbrough was student director for "Bus Stop."

An estimated 250 saw each production during each two-night run. Karen Dye said, "Audiences for the fall play were small because of conflicts from other activities." Mary Kimbrough said, "More persons flock to the spring musical because they prefer music."

Two lonely persons, Tom Taylor, jr., and Sandy Ruppert, sr., reunite as friends when they meet again at a roadside diner. Tom played Carl, the bus driver, and Sandy was Grace, owner of the diner in "Bus Stop."

Combining their torsos for a midget skit in the variety show, "Kaleidoscope of Talent," are Tom Taylor and Kevin Giese, jr. Both were also in the fall play "Bus Stop."

Susie Crabtree, soph., plays Elma, a young girl who is working in the diner where the bus stops. She becomes involved with Dr. Lyman, an alcoholic professor, portrayed by Kevin Giese, jr., in the fall play.

'Oliver' features large cast as well as a fourth grader,

What's a fourth grader doing in a high school musical? As the main character in "Oliver," John Lynn, fourth grader at Central, portrayed Oliver, a poor orphaned boy who was tossed around in society. At least a week after the final cast was picked and after the audition of many high school boys, Mr. Bill Bodnar, director, chose nine-year-old John. He picked the rest of the cast through auditions in which each person had to do readings of scenes and sing songs from the play.

Mr. Bodnar chose "Oliver" over a couple of other plays. "I chose it because the musical score was tremendous," he explained. He also wanted the large cast that "Oliver" allowed. The total cast number was between 50 and 60 persons.

"It was successful in terms of the attendance," said Mr. Bodnar. Enough money was made to pay for the costumes that were rented from a place in Dayton, Ohio. The majority of the costumes were provided by chorus members. As far as the performances themselves, "I was very pleased, but, of course, it was not without its faults," remarked Mr. Bodnar.

About the pit orchestra, which consisted of 16 students, Mr. James Killion, musical director, commented, "They put in long hours and it showed."

After singing the fifth song of the play, Oliver, played by John Lynn, fourth grader, sings "Where Is Love?" Mr. Bumble's sale of Oliver to the Sowerberrys was just one of the ways that Oliver was mistreated.

Mr. Bumble and Mr. Sowerberry, portrayed by Jeff Ellis, sr., and Jim Cannon, jr., respectively sing "That's Your Funeral." The song was appropriate since Mr. Sowerberry was an undertaker.

Sitting on part of the "impressionistic" set for the last scene, London Bridge, are Fagin's boys. Although the cast called for boys, the whole group was played by girls.

Robin Doyen, sr., adds the last touches to junior Jim Craig by painting his hair grey. Jim played the part of Mr. Brownlow, a wealthy old man who turned out to be Oliver's grandfather.

Junior Valerie Demastro sings "Who Will Buy?", while using choreography developed by junior Betsy Hanley. Valerie was a member of the adult chorus in "Oliver," which was presented April 30, May 1, 7 and 8.

Artful Dodger, Betsy Hanley, jr., returns Oliver, fourth grader John Lynn, to Fagin, Kevin Giese, jr. Bill Sikes, Barry Allen, jr., watched as Oliver was disrobed of his new suit he aquired from a rich old man.

Pep sessions arouse spirit

Six hundred students danced to the music of "Rocket" to celebrate the Indians' Homecoming victory.

Three sock hops sponsored by the student council were given after football and basketball games.

Mr. Ronald Hancock, student council sponsor, commented, "The dances were a success; we made money on all of them."

Mr. Floyd Fithian, second district U.S. Representative, spoke at a convocation for seniors. Mr. Fithian explained what it was like to be a congressman and then had a question and answer session where students asked questions about today's politics.

Doctor John Epling addressed the junior class. He was introduced as a Russian educational director and talked to the students about how much better his country was than the U.S. This aroused boos and hisses at which time he took off his Russian costume and continued speaking in a conventional suit. He explained he was really an American and talked about patriotism and religion in the U.S.

Early in the year a convocation was held for the cross country team before they traveled to the state meet in Indianapolis.

A combined pep session attempted to raise spirit for the girls' basketball and boys' wrestling teams, before the teams battled in semi-state competition.

Congressman Floyd Fithian presents Joe Carr, sr., student council president, with a flag that had flown over the Capitol building. After talking to the seniors, Mr. Fithian held a question and answer session.

The Pom Pon girls perform a routine during a convocation. This was the first year Portage High School has had Pom Pon girls. They also performed at football and basketball games during halftime.

Dancing at the Homecoming Dance is junior Joy Jackson. Between 500 and 600 persons attended this dance. The money made was put in the student council treasury for projects such as Christmas baskets.

Sandy Hardesty, Jr., and alumnus Spike Kline dance at the JROTC's sixth Birthday Ball, celebrating the Marine Corps' 200th birthday. Promotions were awarded and Diane Severs, Jr., was named JROTC queen.

Senior "Terrible" Tammy Skirpan leads "Sexy Olevia" (Owen) Miller, sr., in the Homecoming convocation. Each year cheerleaders and football players switch places while the guys compete to be the Homecoming Queen.

Sophomores Bob Hurst and Linda Burnham dance during the Valentine Dance. They were two of the 300 to 400 students who attended. The music for this dance was provided by "M&R Rush."

Class of '76 makes fourth float triumph

Despite the sabotage of their float, "We're Up Against Our Spirit," the class of '76 won float competition for the fourth consecutive year.

Three new activities highlighted halftime festivities. Varsity cheerleaders threw miniature red and white footballs into the stands, Pom Pon girls performed routines, and the parents of football players were recognized with the presentation of roses.

Mary Chustak was crowned Homecoming Queen, as her court of Amy Zatkoff, Tami Skirpan, Carla Hare and Sherry Pavic and the crowd looked on. Marty Hyde was chosen Mr. Football by fellow players.

Halftime activities were summed up with the seniors winning first place in Spirit Week. Sophomores won second place in float competition and juniors brought in third with "Tilt 'Em."

The Indians went on to keep the spirit by defeating Highland, 27-7, which boosted their record to 2-2.

Homecoming came to a finale with the traditional dance. Music was provided by Rocket at the informal cafeteria hop.

Home town beauties? Displaying their "natural" beauty at the Homecoming pep session, are candidates for Homely Homecoming Queen. Along with beauty, responses to questions were judged.

Mr. James Killion enjoys a brisk early morning walk to school in the snow. Mr. Killion often walked to school from his nearby home.

"Open wide" is what Mrs. Nancy Habenicht, Ms. Chris Elibasich, Mrs. Barbara Mason and Mrs. Millie Taylor do everyday during lunch period. Each teacher contributes to the smorgasboard they indulge in.

Besides teaching English, the Kotyuk twins, Kathy and Gerri, enjoy other activities such as an all teacher volleyball team. Here they are reading a drama story assigned to their English classes.

Mr. James Killion enjoys a brisk early morning walk to school in the snow. Mr. Killion often walked to school from his nearby home.

Teachers find things besides school of interest

Teachers are people too. Like many students, they have hobbies and activities that they enjoy.

Some teachers, such as Miss Gerri and Miss Kathy Kotyuk, still attend school. At present the Kotyuks are working toward masters' degrees in education with a specialty in English, and hope to receive the degrees by this summer.

In their spare time the Kotyuks like to travel and participate in sports. The twins are also sponsors of Pep Club.

Some students like to think that teachers aren't involved, but some teachers like Mrs. Sherry Ohlfest are.

Mrs. Ohlfest is president of the local Family Service. She stated that they provide counseling for teenagers, adults and even families.

For those who are into the Lone Ranger, the Shadow and various other old time radio shows, Mr. Neil Lane, social studies teacher, shares the interest. So far he has collected 300 old radio tapes which totals to 3,500 shows. He has taught a course in the history of old-time radio during school and even had a night school class. Along with the tapes he even collects the old radios which he refinishes and makes work.

Married couples teaching were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cantwell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Livovich. The couples exclaimed that even though their spouses work in the same school they never got to see them until it was time to go home. So the things that they enjoyed most are their families and summer vacations, because it's the only time that all of them can be together.

Mrs. Mary Cantwell goes over the books while her husband Jack looks on. Mrs. Cantwell is the bookkeeper-treasurer for the schools funds, and Mr. Cantwell is a science teacher.

Being married and working in the same school system can have some advantages. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Livovich find that they can help each other out with homework assignments after school hours.

Mr. Robert Wilson helps his wife Cheryl out of the car as they arrive at school. Mr. Wilson is a math teacher and Mrs. Wilson is a media specialist.

Senior Ron Falardeau and junior Sharon Goin pause to rest and refresh themselves during a break in the dancing. The band, "Copperhead," played for this phase of the Prom entitled "Knights in White Satin".

Junior Mary Reigert and senior Steve Cheek clap to the sounds of "Copperhead" at the prom. The Prom lasted from 6 to 11 p.m. and after-Prom began at 12 and ended at 3 p.m.

Prom captures magical air

... And the knights and their ladies danced all night long ...

"Knights in White Satin" was the theme for the 1976 junior-senior Prom.

Juniors turned Serbian Hall in Hobart into a fantasy land with a silver-grey castle and wishing well. The Prom was May 15 and the promenading began at 6 p.m. with a social hour and was followed at 7 with the serving of dinner. After-Prom began at 12 p.m. and lasted until 3 a.m.

Music during Prom was provided by "Eden Rock" and "Copperhead" played for after-Prom.

"I wish we would have had a hypnotist or magician like last year," commented Debbie Olson, junior.

Tickets were sold for $15 per couple and 350 persons attended. Mr. Dean Shatz, head junior class sponsor, quoted a price of $1500 for music alone. The total cost of prom amounted to about $4200.

A projected scenery of a castle was used as background for the pictures taken.

"I thought the way pictures were organized was really designed poorly," commented Renee Hiemann, junior. "But that's about the only thing that was wrong with the whole setup."

The day after many students found themselves amused at one of Indiana's state parks.

"I was really burned out when it was finally over," remarked junior Dom Williams.

Juniors Jody Tanner and Mike Tarkane enjoy each other's presence in the courtyard outside of the Serbian Hall in Hobart. The slightly foggy weather conditions helped to enhance the magical atmosphere of the Prom.

Paula Himo, jr., and her date fast dance to the music provided by the rock group "Eden Rock". As it traditionally has been in former years, many of the students changed to more informal clothing for after-Prom.

Junior Sandy Hardesty and her date strike a pose underneath the archway of the giant silver-grey castle used as part of the Prom decorations. The castle was purchased from the Nativity Parish by the Prom committee.

Awards given to students

Awards Night was May 20 in the gymnasium. Seniors Gayle Froman and Mark Meyers acted as the MC's.

Five National Council of Teachers of English Writing Awards were given to juniors Jim Craig, Jim Hale, Angie Hicks, Barb Homme and Chris Petti.

Marty Finucane, sr., received the James Benfield Award. To receive this award, the student must be a graduating senior, a letterman in football or basketball, a participant in more than one sport and an active student.

Attendance awards were given to seniors Jo Lesnick and Jim Wilson and junior Brian Nolan. Out of 12 years of school, Jo missed a total of one and one-half days.

Named most valuable publications staffers were Randy Shirey, sr., News Bureau; Jeff Ellis, sr., Pow Wow; Cheryl Bowser, jr., Legend; and Angie Hicks, jr., Saga. Dennis Meyers, sr., received Outstanding Beginning Journalist award. Mary Riddle, sr., received the Ethel Jones Outstanding Journalist award.

National Honor Society inducted 33 seniors and 64 juniors. Mr. Dennis Bond is the new sponsor of NHS.

The pre-vocational education department named Theresa Tomasino the most outstanding junior. Larry Griffith, soph., was given the award for best money manager. Kenny Hedger, soph., was named the student with the finest attitude.

Carol Warren Sanders, sr., was named valedictorian and Robin Moore, sr., was named salutatorian.

Lions Club announced that Terry Luce, soph., would go to Japan; Owen Miller, sr., to Peru; and Greg Kerezman, soph., to Australia.

The foreign language department announced that junior Becky Rabatin and senior Becky Connors will go to Mexico and junior Ron Buhmann will travel to Germany.

Student Council gave Ann Leimbacher, sr., and Tim Shaffer, jr., $500 each.

Mr. Ron Hancock congratulates Rick Lock, sr., for winning a $200 scholarship. This scholarship was given anonymously by a teacher at PHS for student who plans to go into teaching.

Seniors David Nelson and Brian Todd read for their pre-vocational education class. David was named best employee and Brian won the award for outstanding senior at Awards Night.

Ken Jarvis, soph., receives the President's Physical Fitness Award from Maj. Malcolm Stewart. Other physical fitness awards went to Sandy Blankenship, jr., Fred Potts, soph., and Karen Tibbitts, soph.

Sharing her happiness with Mary Riddle, sr., is senior Donna DeVries. She and seniors Sheryl Cook and Toni Yudi received athletic scholarships. Mary was given the Ethel Jones Outstanding Journalist Award.

Senior Gregg Rohwedder gains recognition for his second place in state diesel mechanics competition from Mr. Vern Strege, instructor. Two Valparaiso High students were also cited.

Mr. Martin Sensenbaugh gives outstanding band members Vince Laine and Joe Carr, sr., each a desk plaque, pin, $100 and certificate. The students' names will also be placed on a permanent school plaque.

Flag formation enhances graduation spirit

Breaking the tradition of having commencement on Sunday, seniors were presented diplomas on Saturday, April 24 because of Memorial Day. The graduates had to have commencement outside but were moved inside when rain threatened. Midterm graduation, which was Feb. 1, was also in the gymnasium.

To celebrate the bicentennial spring ceremony, girls all wore white gowns while guys wore red, and blue one. The graduates were seated in the formation of the American flag which was designed by Mrs. Doris Lock, secretary for the graduation committee. Senior Mary Chustak, chairman of the graduation committee, stated "I thought it was tremendous because I don't think any other high school did it.

Out of a class of 624, Carol Warren ranked first with a 4.00 average and received valedictorian honors, and Robin Moore was second salutatorian. Carol, who graduated midterm, was among the 182 who received diplomas at the February commencement. Robin, on the other hand, graduated in May with 441 fellow students joining with the traditional group were 34 students who graduated after their junior year.

The Reverend Orin Bradford spoke to the seven semester graduates while Father Matthew Brozovic addressed the remaining graduates on life after high school. Midterm graduates also listened as the orchestra and the Chorales performed.

Checking the program to see what could be done for improvements are members Marvin Nolan, Michael Olschok, James PHEL, and JOANN McNeill. Midterm graduates were not given a ride when they graduated.

Gerri Reed, sr., gave the invocation. During the invocation she talked to the girls returning for classes. Many graduates looked sad to leave, saying so [unclear] and friends back home.

Carol Warren, sr., giving a 4.00 average, was valedictorian speaker to the May graduates. Carol graduated midterm, and her 1981 graduation was the 1971 graduation class.

Salutatorian Robin Moore, sr., spoke to fellow graduates about the differences between the high school and college. Robin said that the high school was more relaxed than the college.

Tony Klibofske, sr., receives his diploma from Mr. Jim Fitzgerald, school board member, as Mrs. Sally Olsen, school board secretary, looks on. For the first time, school board members helped in the distribution of diplomas.

Finding it hard to believe that they are graduating are seniors Mary Chustak and Sherry Pavicic. The two wait for their turn to come to receive their diploma.

Preparing to volley the ball, senior Bill Schumaker pauses for a moment with a look of determination on his face. Chosen as Most Valuable Player by an overwhelming number of votes, Schumaker was the key netman of 1975.

Waiting patiently for his turn, freshman Cory Wittenberg stands aside as Russ Tanner, sr., lifts his racket to strike the ball. The racketmen romped over Highland to gain a 5-0 win.

Boys overcome inexperience, end 13-10

Facing a total of 15 opponents, more than any previous PHS tennis team has confronted, the netmen emerged with a 13-10 record.

The outcome of the season did not appear very promising early in the year. Coach Richard Mason commented that the team was actually pathetic at the beginning. "There had to be a giant transition from doubles to singles. None of the guys had played singles regularly before and so we were basically an inexperienced team. Consequently, we had a tough time getting started," stated Coach Mason.

Senior Bill Schumaker, top singles man, was chosen

Most Valuable Player. Schumaker, after acquiring a record of 14-8, was also named to the Duneland all-conference team.

Dominating, LaPorte's racketmen captured sectionals. The Indians conquered Merrillville, 4-1, but Hobart defeated the netmen by a margin of 3-2 in the second sectional game.

Tying with Hobart in the Duneland Conference, the team finished in fifth place.

Freshman Cory Wittenberg was "excellent," Coach Mason said, and, as a result, he lettered in his first year. The honor automatically qualified Wittenberg for the four-year letterman award.

Sending the ball over the net, Scott Ribordy, jr., successfully rallies to overcome his opponent. The Indians won their contest with River Forest with a final score of 5-0.

Concentration is a necessity for success in the game of tennis. Mark Hannah, jr., displays deep concentration as he prepares to return a ball to his opponent.

Harriers place fifth in state; season ends with 13-2 tally.

Finishing the season with a convincing 13-2 record, the CC men competed in the state meet for the fifth straight year. The harriers received 5th place for their efforts.

"We were disappointed. We expected to do better," stated Basil Robertson, sr., referring to their performance in the state meet. "But fifth in the state is nothing to be ashamed of," he added. Robertson led the tribe in the race by coming in 20th.

The Indians gained first place honors in the Duneland Conference contest. The harriers also grabbed first place in the sectionals and regionals.

Senior Bob Peterson, who paced the CC men the majority of the season, was named to the All-Conference team. Other PHS runners named to the team included senior Robertson and juniors Bryan Mulvihill and Fred Reynolds.

Robertson concluded it was a "great year."

Senior Bill Murray nears the gate after running the lengthy stretch at the Cressmoor Country Club. The Indians romped over Hobart, with Murray placing 15th.

Bryan Mulvihill, jr., struggles to finish the long course located in Indianapolis. Portage finished fifth in the state, an accomplishment that required long hours of practice.

Entering the chute, senior Basil Robertson receives his number. Robertson finished third in the race to aid the harriers in their victory over Valparaiso.

Several different schools participated in the state meet, which was in Indianapolis. Bob Peterson, pacing the CC men most of the season, placed 49th in the contest.

Team takes second in sectionals, finishes 10-11

A second place standing in sectionals and a 10-11 record for the season were achieved by the 1975 girls' volleyball team.

Going into sectionals with a 7-10 record, the girls won three of the four games and were beaten by only Valparaiso.

Barb Homme, jr., was awarded "Most Valuable Player" for the season, and also, "Outstanding Server and Blocker." Amy Zatkoff, sr., named "Outstanding Spiker" and Alex Lajcin, jr., named the "Most Improved Player."

Miss Juanita Viera, coach, stated that the girls "really played good. We had a better record this year than last year."

According to Miss Viera, some of the roughest opponents were Valparaiso, Elkhart Central and Hammond Gavit.

Eight of the eleven girls will be returning next year.

Miss Juanita Viera, coach, gives last-minute instructions while the girls give the good-luck shake before they continue the game. PHS beat Merrillville in this match, 15-4 and 15-1.

Barb Homme, jr., serves the ball into play in the match against Valparaiso. She was named "Most Valuable Player" and "Outstanding Server and Blocker" for the season.

Spiking the volleyball over the net to her Hammond High opponent is junior Barb Homme. PHS completed this match with a score of 2-0, in its favor. The team faced 16 schools this year.

In sectional competition, junior Patti Demo concentrates on bumping the ball to her opponents to gain points for PHS. The girls placed second in this year's finals and finished the season, 10-11.

Varsity gridgers even out season, 5-5

Although the 1975 varsity gridmen got off to a slow start, they defeated five of their opponents to end the season, 5-5.

Crown Point slipped by the Indians to gain an 8-7 win, a disappointment the PHS gridmen had not expected.

Valparaiso stomped Portage, 35-27. The Vikings overcame Carmel in the state playoffs and won by a 14-13 margin.

Homecoming, the highlight of the season, proved to be a success as the Indians rallied to scalp Highland, 21-7.

After a loss to Hobart, the gridgers pulled together and won their last three games of the season.

Seniors Bill Wood and Marty Hyde served as co-captains for the year.

Hyde was chosen as Most Valuable Player. He was also named Mr. Football.

One player felt that the team as a whole could have been expecting too much out of the season. However, the majority felt differently. One member of the team said, "We did the best we could. What more can be expected of anyone?"

After receiving a pass, senior Dennis Cook is pursued by a player from Hobart. The Brickies managed to gain a victory by scoring against the gridmen to end the game, 30-6.

Reaching for the ball, senior Jay Dudgeon realizes that it will be intercepted. The Portage Indians were a bit disappointed in the season's turnout as it ended, 5-5.

Senior Craig Nelson attempts to catch a "pitch out" that Perry Theodores, sr., threw as a last resort. The Indians blanked East Gary in the contest with a score of 28-0.

JV gridders close 7-1; girls' golf posts 3-5 tally

With a record better than any PHS junior varsity football team in the past few years, the gridders ended their season with a 7-1 record. Their one downfall was to Hobart, losing that game, 6-0. The last game of the season was against East Gary, in which the Indians stomped their opponents, 32-0.

When asked to name a most valuable player, Mr. Robert Mattix, coach, replied, "I don't want to single out one person. All the boys played really outstanding in every game."

The girls' golf team, consisting of five girls, finished the season with a 3-5 record.

All of the players except one were seniors. Mrs. Sharon Rose, coach, commented, "I only hope that, since our record this year was so promising, that more interest will develop in next year's students. If we can get some sophomores on the team next year, then by the time they are seniors, we will have a good team. Everyone is welcome to join, though. Season ends, 16-1; girls lose semi-state

Winding up their regular season undefeated, the girls' varsity basketball team went on to capture sectionals and regionals, ending the season with a 16-1 tally.

After clashing with Hammond Gavit, the Indians gained the confidence they needed to compete with tougher teams such as Valparaiso and Chesterton. The girls slipped past Gavit by a 37-34 margin.

Valparaiso, a long-time rival of Portage, was the first team the Indians encountered in the sectionals. Portage beat the Vikings easily, 33-22. Chesterton was next, with the determined Indians stomping the Trojans, 45-31.

The tribe took first place honors in the regional by defeating M.C. Rogers, 50-39. However, they dropped semi-state to East Chicago Roosevelt.

Senior Marsha Hopkins led the team in scoring for the year with 12 points per game. Linda Radivan, sr., was the second leading scorer with nine points per game. Radivan led the team in rebounding with senior Donna DeVries following close behind.

None of this year's starters will return next year.

Donna DeVries, sr., takes advantage of a clean shot during action against Chesterton. DeVries was the second leading rebounder, averaging 10 grabs per game, and scoring 8.9 points per game.

Senior Linda Radivan prepares to pass the ball to a teammate, as Diane Browning, sr., cautiously looks on. The Indians rallied to come from behind and overcome Hammond Gavit, 37-34.

Cagers lack height, experience; finish 4-17

As a result of poor shooting and a lack of height, the varsity basketball team closed their season, 4-17.

Coach Morrie Goodnight felt that other reasons for the poor season record included "a low defensive average and the fact that most opponents had their best team in years."

Senior Craig Nelson was the leading scorer, tallying 301 points during the season. Ron Langendorfer, sr., came in second with 249 points. Langendorfer was also the Indians leading rebounder with 144.

The roundballers defeated Calumet early in the season by a close margin of 79-72. After a loss to M.C. Rogers, 58-67, the varsity team stomped Knox, 80-58.

The cagers dropped the first sectional game to Hobart, 71-65.

Bringing the ball downcourt, Bill Wood, sr., drives around his Red Devil opponent. The PHS roundballers were defeated by Michigan City Elston by a wide 36-74 margin.

Attempting to add another basket to the score is junior Jim Lukasik. The Indians failed to stop Valparaiso, however, and lost the contest to the Vikings, 65-85.

Quick thinking must be executed by senior Ron Langendorfer to keep the ball in the possession of the Indians. Langendorfer was the leading rebounder and second leading scorer with 249 points.

Setting up his opponent for a takedown is 105-pound senior Ted Choucalas. Choucalas, who made 17 pins during the season, was sent downstate where he took second place.

Senior Jim Wilson quickly studies his situation, deciding the best way to turn over the opposing wrestler. Wilson tallied a 19-7 record, including two pins and a third in the regional competition.

Executing the "purdue" move, senior Les Slatton strains to hold his opponent. The Indians spent many hours after school each night training and conditioning under the guidance of Coach Bruce Sheriff.

Grapplers tally 4-4 record; Choucalas travels to state

In spite of the fact that this year's wrestling team was generally young, there were enough veterans to push the season mark to an even 4-4 record.

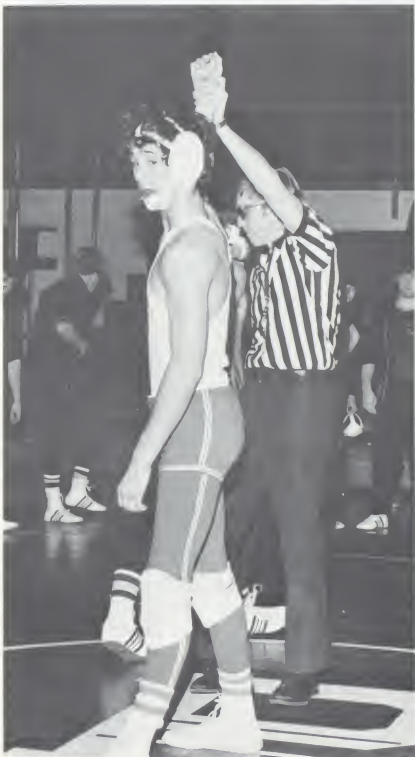

During the regular season, the wrestlers romped on long-time rival, Valparaiso, by a win of 37-25, but dropped the meet to LaPorte, 18-30. They ended the season by defeating M.C. Rogers, 31-21.

The matmen managed to tally 92.5 points in the Hammond High Tourney, entitling them to second place.

They also grabbed a second place position in the Portage Holiday Tourney.

Accumulating 133.5 points at the Valparaiso sectional, the matmen seized first place honors. The Tribe then invaded Crown Point, bringing home a regional victory.

Senior Ted Choucalas proved to be an asset to the team, boasting a 30-1 record. Choucalas traveled to Indianapolis to compete on the state level, where he placed second.

Concerned about action on the mats, the remainder of the varsity wrestlers look on, providing their own type of cheering. The grapplers managed to tally a 4-4 dual meet record for the season.

Being declared as the official winner by the referee is senior Casey Donley. Donley, 167 pounds, wrestled his way to a 21-6 season mark, including his 6-2 dual record, and two pins.

J.V. roundballers end season on 6-15 note

Getting off to a slow start, the junior varsity basketball team eventually ended their season, 6-15.

Junior Kelly Campbell led the Indians in scoring with 165 points. Following close behind, juniors Ray Dooley and Bob Hurst each tallied 162 points.

Eleven games passed before the cagers could get a glimpse of victory. Then the roundballers romped on Hobart, beating them 55-30. The following night, Hammond Noll defeated PHS 33-41, but the Indians bounced right back and beat LaPorte by a wide 61-39 margin.

Griffith slipped past the cagers toward the end of the season and won 38-36. The J.V. team then went on to win its next two games easily.

Winding up the long season, the roundballers succeeded in beating Crown Point by a convincing score of 56-48.

Due to the structure of the wrestling team, the junior varsity did not compete as a team. Wrestlers attended meets with the varsity and competed whenever possible.

With a leap into the air, Bob Hurst soph., attempts to tip the ball and gain possession of it. The roundballers were not able to defeat the Vikings in the contest, and fell to them, 35-38.

Keeping control of the ball, sophomore Terry Scott steers away from his opponent, hoping to sink a basket before the Viking can steal the ball. The cagers lost to Valparaiso by a slim 35-38 edge.

Senior Sheryl Cook displays the winning style as she performed it in regionals. Cook captured first for her performance, after practicing daily to perfect her timing, grace, and overall style.

Senior Gayle Froman does her routine on the uneven bars during practice. Froman fractured her wrist in regional competition as she performed her routine in floor exercise.

Injuries affect outcome of gymnastics season

Although various injuries occurred throughout the year, the gymnastics team seized a 10-1 seasonal mark.

During the regular season, the Tribe easily defeated most of their opponents. They fell only to Munster, which had an extremely strong team, according to Coach Beverly Reynolds.

Senior Gayle Froman suffered a fractured wrist in regional competition, thus disqualifying her from further action. However, the other team members continued to display the grace and skill familiar to PHS gymnastics fans. At regionals, senior Sheryl Cook captured a first on the uneven bars. Karen Kusmierz, sr., took second on the balance beam and senior Toni Yudt grabbed a second on the vault. The optional team clutched an honorable second at the contest after being overtaken by Munster.

Cook competed at state and brought PHS first place honors for her performance on the unevens.

Elise Froman, Jr., smiles as she successfully goes over the vault. Froman was a member of the intermediate gymnastics team which completed the regular season undefeated.

Team spirit is a contributing factor to the general morale of the team. The gymnasts cheered and applauded their way to the regional, where they captured second place honors behind favored Munster.

Cautiously performing her routine on the uneven bars is senior Toni Yudt. The gymnasts practiced after school and during gymnastics classes to perfect the style of the routine and to attain precision.

Pushing to pass the baton to junior Barb Homme, Lisa Cook, fresh, finishes her leg of the mile relay. The team was unable to complete on home grounds because of the condition of the track.

A good serve is an important factor to the game of tennis. Junior Alex Lajcin displays the technique during a match against the LaPorte Slicers, which the Indians won by a 4-3 margin.

Girls' track takes second in sectionals

Although the girls' track team was fairly young, they managed to push the season record to an 8-9 end.

In Duneland Conference action, the Indians took an honorable second. The LaPorte Slicers gained recognition as the champions.

Gary West Side overtook the team in sectionals and grabbed a first, with PHS close behind, placing second in the contest.

Coach Bernita Adkins commented that they were a fairly "young team, having only three seniors participating." She continued by saying that there will be a few outstanding girls returning next year, such as juniors Rhonda Pendleton and Barb Homme, and Sophomore Cindy Tarpo. Pendleton, Homme, and Tarpo all competed in the regionals.

Seniors Lawanna Stanley and Kathy Tarpo were chosen as Most Valuable Player.

The girls' tennis team, under first year coach Barb Mason, ended their season 4-17.

Junior Jennifer Ferguson was awarded the honor of Best Attitude. Debi Carr, jr., was named Most Valuable Player, and the Most Improved Player award was given to Junior Olivia Powell in recognition for marked progress.

Breathlessly reaching the finish line, sophomore Cindy Tarpo comes in far ahead of her other opponents. Cindy was regarded by Coach Adkins to be an outstanding runner, and is expected to be an asset next year.

Junior Claudia Monahan pauses to gently tip the ball, sending it over the net. The Indians were able to use the new tennis courts as both an area to practice their skills and a location to hold the home games.

Junior Brian Mulvihill and seniors Chuck Patterson and Bob Peterson display the agony and endurance involved in track and field. Some of the events the sport entails are the shotput, relays, high jump, and discus throwing.

Pushing to reach the finish line, senior Bill Wood comes in right ahead of his opponent. Wood was named as one of the two Most Valuable trackmen, with Bob Peterson as the other Most Valuable.

Cindermen end season, 6-3; Peterson and Wood MVP's

The 1976 track and field team wound up their regular season with a satisfactory 6-3 record.

Seniors Bill Wood and Bob Peterson were named as Most Valuable Trackmen. Their fellow teammates chose them for the honor.

Most Improved Trackman Award also went to two team members. Chosen by first year Coach Bill Wilke, the award went to junior Jim Malone and senior John Van Proyen. Each team member is evaluated as to the amount of progress he has made in one season.

The Mental Attitude award was given to senior Marty Finucane.

At the first meet, the cindermen competed with Lake Central, stomping them 55-70. (In track events, low score wins.) The Indians lost the next meet to Lowell, 63-11.

The track team came back to beat Penn, 55-68. The PHS team invaded Merrillville territory the following week, but lost the contest to the Pirates, 73-49.

The determined Indians scalped LaPorte 31-98 in a thrilling meet held at the home of the Slicers.

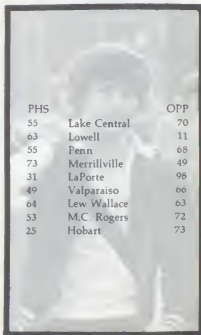

One other special meet was the one which the cindermen won by a powerful and convincing 25-73 romp over Hobart.

Junior Dan O'Meara strives to get over one of the hurdles during sectional competition. Long hours of practice kept the track and field team in shape all year round, and prepared them for competition.

Chosen as Most Improved Trackman was senior John Van Proyen.

Van Proyen keeps in time with the opponents of various other schools, waiting for the right moment when he can break into a sprint.

Junior Bob Collins reaches back, getting ready for the downswing. Concentration, form, and patience are three essentials needed to score low in the game of golf.

Attempting to knock the ball out of the "boonies," senior Bob Branscome stands firm, being careful not to fall into the water beside him. There are many obstacles to avoid when participating in the sport.

Golf team has 4-16 record, 11th place in sectionals

"We were much too inconsistent," explained Mr. Michael Lemond, golf coach. "We just didn't have the type of year we had expected."

The boy's golf team ended the long season with a dismal 4-16 tally.

Sectionals proved to be somewhat of a disappointment as the Indians placed 11th in the competition.

Robinhurst golf course provided the team with a new home stomping grounds. It is the first home course Portage has had. Because of the course, the team had a better location to prepare for the meets. Their practice was interrupted only in times of bad weather.

Seniors Tom Aydelotte, Bob Branscome, and Brian Fadely were the three lettermen who returned for action. Juniors Bob Collins and Ted Woodland received their letters this year.

Coach Lemond feels that the team for next year will be basically "young and inexperienced." He concluded by saying that it may prove to be another building year.

Adjusting his grip on the club, junior Ted Woodland carefully prepares to putt the ball into the hole. Woodland was chosen by Coach Lemond to be the Most Improved Player.

Senior Brian Fadely examines the situation before going into his swing. Fadely was named Most Valuable Player by the other members of the golf team.

Gasping for air, junior Larry Swetkey attempts to better his time in the 100-yard butterfly. Coach Carl Somers regarded Swetkey as his "top man" in both the 200 and 500-yard freestyle.

Senior Gary Knoll executes the backstroke at one of the swim meets. Knoll, who served as a co-captain on the team, proved to be the best Indian the 100-yard backstroke and the 200-yard individual medley.

Recording the time of each swimmer is one of the tasks of which Coach Carl Somers is in charge during swim practice. Coach Somers led the tankmen to a 7-6-1 record for the regular season.

Todd Radivan, soph., performs his forward dive, which includes one somersault in tuck position. Radivan, instructed by Mr. Bill Chappo, diving coach, was the second man on the diving team.

Tankmen end 7-6-1; drop sectionals

During the 1975-76 season, the swim team posted a 7-6-1 record, breaking approximately 20 team records in the process.

The free relay team of senior Jerry Noland and juniors Larry Swetkey, Chris Mulligan, and Chris Petti set a new pool record at 3:33.

Swetkey established new times in the 50, 100, and 200-yard freestyles with times of .23 5/10, 51.6, and 1:55.8 consecutively. When he competed in the sectionals, Swetkey lost his opportunity of going to state competition by 1/10 of a second.

Senior diver Don Seitzinger broke three pool records during the season and beat the state standard qualification by two points. Coach Carl Somers commented that Seitzinger was his "number one diver this year." The divers were instructed by diving coach Bill Chappo.

Chris Petti, jr., set a new time in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 58.1.

Aiding the team as co-captains were seniors Gary Knoll and Ray Beattie.

Junior John Christakis comes up for air while practicing the 100-yard freestyle. The swimmers worked out in the morning and evening under the direction of Coach Carl Somers, bringing the season to a 7-6-1 end.

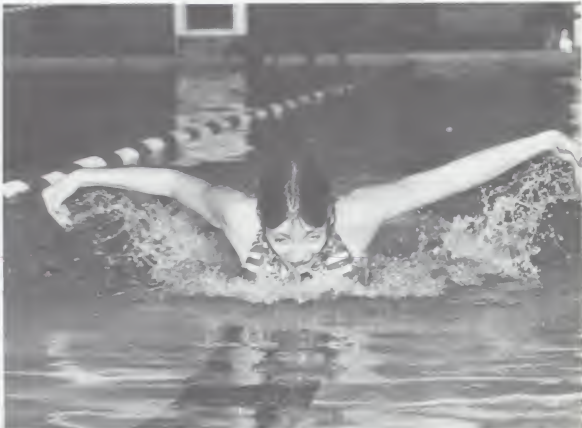

"Diver Don" Seitzinger, sr., displays one of his popular dives during practice. Seitzinger broke three pool records during the regular season, and also beat the state standard qualification.

Essential factors vital for a good dive include timing, form and concentration. Lawanna Stanley, sr., performs her dive, perfected under the instruction of Coach Bill Chappo and Coach Judy Reich.

Struggling to perfect her butterfly stroke, freshman Jessica Petti swims during a practice session. In spite of their efforts, the team ended the season, 3-8.

JV'ers tally 8-11-1 season; swimming team ends 3-8

Under the guidance of Mr. Tom Levandowski, the junior varsity baseball team ended their season 8-11-1.

"I was very disappointed with the number of boys that went out this year," stated Coach Levandowski. "I believe there is a lot of wasted ability that isn't used simply because the boys don't try out."

During the regular season, the team was not too hampered by the threat of rain. They had a chance to play quite a few games and went into extra innings on some. In one particular contest against LaPorte, the J.V. batmen played 13 innings before finally losing, 5-4.

Coach Levandowski feels that there are many players who possess the potential needed for the varsity team next year. Sophomores Mark Zacarias and Jim McCulloch were two of the batmen mentioned.

First year coach Judy Reich led the female swimmers into their meets this year. The girls finished 3-8 in what was labeled a building year for the team.

Senior Lawanna Stanley was named Most Valuable Swimmer by her teammates.

Coach Reich said she was happy with the overall attitude of the team. "The girls really tried this year. We just had some tough competition to come our way," she concluded.

With his eyes focused on home plate, sophomore Don Rogers winds up for the pitch during warm-ups. The J.V. batmen practiced after school whenever possible, depending upon the weather.

Winding up for the pitch, senior Dennis Cook takes careful aim to sail the ball directly over home plate. Pitching requires hand-eye coordination to assure the "perfect" pitch.

Coach Larry Casbon remains in the dugout during action displayed by the PHS batmen. Coach Casbon, who has been coaching Portage teams for eight years, also served as a driver's education instructor.

Senior Russ Tanner slides into third base before his opponent can grab the ball to make the play. The varsity baseball players started practice early in March, to be ready for competition, which began Apr. 6.

Indians give up unearned runs, end year 13-16

"The team has given up too many unearned runs," explained Mr. Larry Casbon, coach of the 1976 baseball squad. "Otherwise, our season record would not have been so low," he continued. The Indians finished the season, 13-16, without too much threat of rain.

Senior Ron Noelting grabbed the title of Most Valuable Player. Noelting occupied the position of first baseman.

Best Defensive Player went to senior Bill Schumacker. Schumacker, who played second base for the batmen, also received recognition as the player who had batted in the most runs.

Catcher Pery Theodoros, sr., had the best batting average.

Two pitchers were regarded as assets to the squad. Senior Kirk Salmon received the Most Stolen Bases honor, and junior Duane Hazelman had the Leading Earned Run Average.

Coach Casbon stated that the "pitching and defense were inconsistent." He also said that it was difficult to determine the outcome of a game until it was completed because of the inconsistency.

Woodland Park was the location for the home games this year.

Administrators eye trying day

Many students believe administrators' jobs are a snap. But really a day's schedule can be very busy and hectic.

Legend attempted to follow a "typical" day for administrators on Wednesday, Dec. 12.

Dr. Donald Bivens, superintendent, began his day by going over the necessary typing with his secretary. During the day Dr. Bivens received and made a number of phone calls to such people as the mayor, county superintendent and school board president. He also met with such people as Mr. Bill Mathews, principal of Kyle Elementary School and Mrs. Oppman, library media director.

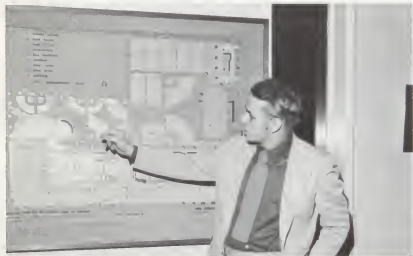

Dr. George McKay, assistant superintendent for secondary education, traveled to several schools for his conferences. His first was at Grissom Middle School. Later he met with the Aylesworth Parent Group to discuss his areas of responsibility. At noon he had a luncheon with two Hobart administrators. In his spare time Dr. McKay started writing a Departmental Leadership Handbook.

During his day, Principal John Hevel had three parent conferences. Returning 19 phone calls to other administrators and parents took up another chunk of Mr. Hevel's day.

Because Assistant Principal Floyd Johnson was in charge of building and grounds, he toured the high school before 7:45 a.m. to check for possible damage or vandalism from the previous night. Later Mr. Johnson had a conference with a teacher about a field trip. During the afternoon he took care of bus problems and planned for night activities at the school.

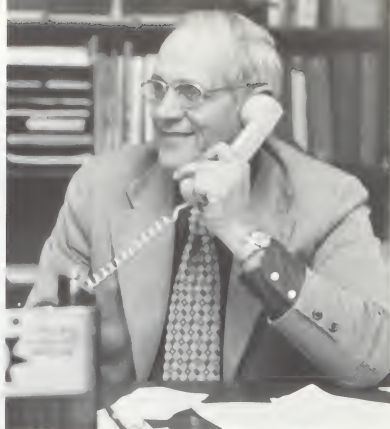

Mr. Bob Smith, dean of students, started his day by calling the administration building for a list of substitute teachers and then had the secretaries pull out folders containing the teachers' schedules and attendance procedures. Another part of his day was spent helping Mr. Tolbert with attendance problems.

Assistant Principal Mr. Floyd Johnson handles one of his many routine phone calls. During the day Mr. Johnson talks to such people as Mr. Everett Rohwedder, vocational teacher, to janitors and to other administrators.

Superintendent Donald Bivens explains the facilities of the high school to the school board. The board plans completion of the new building by 1979.

Being principal of PHS gives Mr. John Hevel the responsibility of the total operation of the school. In addition to his other duties, Mr. Hevel often has conferences with Dr. George McKay to discuss problems that come up during school.

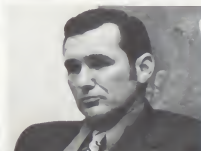

As superintendent of Portage Township Schools, Dr. Donald Bivens must meet with various area school administrators to discuss new projects and problems at their schools.

Mr. Bob Smith, dean of students stays in close contact with the Portage Youth Bureau to deal with certain student problems. Mr. Smith's job also requires him to observe classes.

As part of his job, Dr. George McKay, assistant superintendent of secondary education, has conferences with new teachers from several district schools. He also represents secondary education at school board meetings.

SCHOOL BOARD: MR. BRUCE CREAMY, member, MR. WILLIAM ENGLISH, vice-president, MR. HUBERT FITZGERALD, member, MR. JAMES MILLINGTON, president, MRS. SALLY OLSEN, secretary.

Students reassigned as fifth counselor added

"Under North Central rules, we did not have enough counselors for the amount of students at PHS," commented Mr. Robert Mullen, guidance counselor. With the addition of Mr. Walter Alexander to the counseling staff, PHS now has enough counselors, and one-fifth of the students have a new adviser. "We took the total student population at PHS and divided it by five, with each counselor taking a fifth," stated Mr. Mullen.

North Central rules are codes set by representatives from school staffs and administrators. North Central is a credit agency which regulates high school courses, credit requirements and teaching staffs.

Besides counselors, other persons are needed to run PHS. The secretaries took care of such things as daily attendance sheets, school supply sales and deficiency slip mailing.

The cafeteria staff offered three different lunches each day. After receiving a suggestion from student council, the cafeteria staff made hamburgers and shakes daily.

Either the nurse or the nurse's aide was on hand each day to help students who were sick or injured.

GUIDANCE COUNSELORS: Mr. Walter Alexander, Mrs. Majorie Herren, Mr. Thomas Lauerman, Mr. Robert Mullen, Miss Ann VanBeek.

SCHOOL NURSES: Mrs. Louise Baker, aide; Mrs. Patricia Noland, nurse.

KITCHEN STAFF — Front Row: Nora McMillan, Betty Miller, Edith Chavez, Annabell Thomas, Ruth Peck. Row 2: Ruth Walker, Nan Logdson, Theresa Meier, June Borman, Roberta McCabe, Sue Wilson, Myra Dixon.

Miss Mary Ellen Ault, director of foods for Portage Township Schools, inspects the cafeteria equipment weekly for cleanliness and checks to see if the foods needed for student lunches are on hand.

Mr. Maurice Tolbert, Portage Township attendance officer, handles attendance records for all Portage Township students. Since every student has an attendance record, his job is very time consuming.

As director of adult education, Mr. Kenneth Woodruff reviews some facts about the General Education Development test for Adult Education students. This test, when passed, is equivalent to a high school diploma.

SCHOOL SECRETARIES: Mrs. Ann Addis, Mrs. Dodie Arvidson, Mrs. Eleanor Blakely, Mrs. Mary Cantwell, Mrs. Doris Lock, Mrs. Donna McCormick.

Class of '76 grabs firsts in float, spirit competitions

Despite the sabotage of their Homecoming float, the class of '76 managed to win the float competition for their fourth year in a row. No class had ever done this in the history of the school. "They're up against our spirit" was the theme that brought in the honors for seniors. To keep with the tradition, the seniors also won Spirit Day.

Mary Chustak was crowned Homecoming queen for the class of '76 with her court including Sherry Pavicic, Tami Skirpan, Amy Zatkoff and Carla Hare.

A car wash and a bake sale consisted of the money raising projects for this year's class.

In April, the seniors took a look into how the city government of Portage works. They replaced the government officials and performed the duties of the city's employees.

As the year drew to a close, senior activities consisted of measurement for cap and gown, selection of graduation announcements and the final countdown to the last day of school.

Tradition was broken this year as graduation was moved up to a Saturday, May 29, because of Memorial Day.

To keep in step with the Bicentennial year, seniors wore red, white, and blue and were arranged in the shape of a flag.

Mary Chustak, class president, commented, "I'm glad it's all over, but I'm going to miss everybody."

Money-making activities directed toward Prom

Fund-raising projects sponsored by the junior class for the 1976 prom were a candy sale and a bake sale. A car wash was also planned, but inclement weather prevented it from taking place. The candy sale brought in $3,000, while the bake sale netted $39.

Remaining money needed for the Prom was secured through tickets, which were $15 per couple. The theme for the May 15 Prom at Serbian Hall was "Knights in White Satin." "I think they did a good job of putting on the prom," commented Laura Vaughn, class president.

After all the bills were paid, the junior class had approximately $1,000 left over for graduation and a school gift.

The class placed second in spirit day competition; the float "Football Wizards" placed third.

Soph ring choices vary

Although sophomores were new at PHS activities, they were able to generate enough school spirit to get two Homecoming victories. Their float, which consisted of a huge ape clad in a football uniform, carried the theme, "We Don't Monkey Around," and was awarded second place in competition. Spirit day festivities let them grab a third place honor.

Treasurer Sally Gasser commented that one of the main differences between high school life and that of middle schools is that "we aren't treated like babies anymore." Other sophomores related that it was easier to become involved with school activities.

Sophomores anxiously await their turns to pick up their class rings, the symbol of belonging to the class of '78. Students chose their bands from a spectrum of styles, shapes, colors and stones.

As the 2:35 bell blasts the previously hushed halls fill with "Hey, Tina, going to Broadway tonight?" How'd ya do on Taylor's econ test, Ted?" Each student heads in his own direction; some know they have three to four minutes to hop on a bus before it jerks away, while others race to cars in the parking lot to try to beat the rat race it will soon become. Some wander the halls heading toward a sports practice, Pep Club session, student council meeting or test make-up. Most of the students lasted the winter with a little help from snow days, Christmas vacation, and a free first or last hour, but as spring approached the atmosphere of PHS changed. Seniors got antsy, juniors got bored, and sophomores became restless. Everyone dreamt of going to the Dairy Queen or out cruising, when the voice of one of the 100-plus teachers brought them back into the classroom. Now summer has come and each of us will go his own way, some never to return again, while others will be back in the fall with their own memories of summer to share with the group that composes the student body of PHS.

Special thanks to Mr. Mike Hackleman, American Yearbook representative, for letting us make our own decisions ... BUT:

and adding a little excitement to dull meetings with his blue suit. Mike, I still want that big color chart.

To Mr. Martin Troglgio, for all the help in those little emergencies.

To Mrs. Heitmann, for enduring the long nights, the clouds we left and trying to understand our crazy ways.

To the photographers for letting me mess in the darkroom, and giving us that almost perfect print. To my fellow staffers, "thank you" just can't express this year; you've been great even when the going got rough. This isn't one person's book; it's all of ours, and you made it great. Good luck to next year's staffers. I hope you enjoy the year because it will pass quickly.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

the 1990s, the number of publications in the field of research on the effects of the environment on mental health has increased significantly.

The present study is part of a larger project on the effects of the environment on mental health. The project is a collaboration between the University of Groningen and the University of Twente. The project is funded by the Dutch Ministry of Health, Welfare and Sport.

The project aims to investigate the effects of the environment on mental health in a large, representative sample of the Dutch population.

The project is divided into three main phases: (1) data collection, (2) data analysis, and (3) dissemination of results.

In the first phase, data were collected from a large, representative sample of the Dutch population. The data were collected through a series of surveys and interviews.

In the second phase, the data were analyzed using a range of statistical techniques. The results of the analysis are presented in this paper.

In the third phase, the results of the study will be disseminated to the public and to policy-makers. This will be done through a series of reports, articles, and presentations.

The project is a major contribution to the understanding of the effects of the environment on mental health. The results of the study will have important implications for public health and for policy-making.
